THE MANAGER

DOUGIE FREEDMAN

Good afternoon and welcome to the Reebok Stadium for today's game against Ipswich Town.

Once again, last Saturday we felt we put on a performance that warranted a win and three points.

We took a deserved lead with a well-worked goal after some inventive play from Neil Danns and Jermaine Beckford. We then found ourselves once again the victims of some misfortune for Sheffield Wednesday's equaliser. We conceded soon after scoring, albeit a very unfortunate own goal.

In the end we created a lot of chances, enough to win the game, but it just wasn't our day in front of goal. Hopefully we can remedy that today.

I'd like to welcome Mick McCarthy and the players, staff and supporters of Ipswich Town. I've got great respect for Mick and what he has achieved in his career to date. He did a very good job last season in getting Ipswich out of trouble and has also made a solid start to the new campaign.

I feel it is a game we can come out on top in if we show the same enthusiasm and intensity that we have in our recent games at the Reebok. We have created a number of chances and have looked dangerous for large periods of games.

On a home front, we have just extended Sanmi Odelusi's contract and signed Tom Youngs to a professional deal. I have a huge passion in developing young players and have high hopes for these two if they are able to continue their progress.

It's also pleasing to report that Mark Davies is making great progress and is on target for a return to training in the foreseeable future. When I first came through the door here he was one of the players I was really excited about working with. It'll be a huge boost to everyone when he returns and is back up to full speed.

Thank you again for your continued patience and support in what is a difficult time for us all; the players appreciate it.

Finally, I'd like welcome the Fiji national rugby league team, who are staying at the Bolton Whites Hotel ahead of the upcoming World Cup. They are a fantastic group of sportsmen and are a great bunch of human beings; we wish them all the very best.

Enjoy the game.

THESKIPPER

ZATKNIGHT

It was frustrating not to take all three points against Sheffield Wednesday last weekend, but we're confident that we can eradicate that against Ipswich Town this afternoon.

Saturday was a difficult game, but that's been the story of our season so far. We just have to keep believing, getting into positions and hopefully it will start coming together.

There's really good morale and a great atmosphere around the place at the moment. There's a lot of togetherness and we just want the games to come thick and fast – we might not have won too many, but we've not lost in four games, so that's a good feeling in itself.

We're confident that we can start turning these draws into wins and start climbing that table.

It's going to a tough game today though – Ipswich have a reputation as a bit of a yo-yo team in terms of their results.

We saw last year what a threat they can be, because they were losing heavily every week and then they came to the Reebok and got a draw.

In this league though, you can't write off any teams – you only have to look at the likes of QPR who recently drew at Millwall to see that.

This game is so up and down, but we've just got to believe in ourselves and keep that unbeaten run going.

We're already looking ahead to the Bournemouth game next weekend – every game is massive for them at the moment, especially when they play at home and it's clear to see that they're just enjoying playing in this division at the moment.

A lot of teams like them will look to games against us and think of it as taking a scalp if they win because we're a big club and recently out of the Premier League, but we've got to treat every team the same and give them respect.

We can't be scared of anybody – we've just got to go there and pick up some points on the road.

We got our first win away from home at Birmingham, so hopefully that can continue against Bournemouth.

The fans have been fantastic so far and have made all the difference, especially away from home – they're sticking with us and that's all we need.

We'll try and do our best on the pitch to reward their support – obviously not everything that you do comes off, but everyone needs to stay together and we'll end up moving in the right direction.

Enjoy the game.

Medo Kamara talks to the official programme about his move to the club, his illustrious career and why this year has been one to remember.

MEDO KAMARA

After spending the early stages of his career playing in Africa and Scandinavia, Medo Kamara found himself on the Reebok doorstep in January ready to embark on the next chapter of his career.

The 25-year old midfielder chose to leave Serbian giants Partizan and the glamour of playing Champions League football to fulfil a lifelong dream of playing on English shores.

Medo instantly became a fans' favourite with his tenacious style of play in the heart of the Wanderers midfield and the club's No.44 admitted that 2013 will be a year he will never forget for more reasons than one.

ONE ON ONE

WITH MEDO KAMARA

"I am really enjoying life in England and at Bolton Wanderers," he told the Wanderers match day programme. "I live only five minutes away from the Reebok Stadium and it has been an amazing experience playing for the club.

"Last Monday was six months to the day that my daughter was born - she is my first child and spending time with my family away from football is so important to me. This year has been memorable for me in so many ways, to join Bolton Wanderers and to become a dad - it has been incredible."

Affectionately known as Medo, the Sierra Leone international will turn 26 next month but started his journey over a decade ago 3,000 miles away in Sierra Leone.

Sierra Leone is a country in West Africa which borders Guinea and Liberia and has an estimated population of six million people.

Now an established international for his homeland country with ten senior caps earned in the past two years, Medo reflected back on how he started playing the game and explained why he loves a strong tackle.

"I started playing football from an early age with my friends and from that moment all I ever wanted to do was to become a footballer. Both my dad and my brother used to take me to play with all the other lads after school.

"Football is my thing. My dad used to play for a local team so it has been a game which has always been played in my family. Unfortunately my dad only played a handful of games because he picked up a bad injury.

"My brother is living back home in Sierra Leone playing football so yes, it is definitely a family game.

"My first competitive game was a league match for a local team I was playing for their development squad even though I was only 13 years of age. I didn't want to always play with my own age because I believed I could do more than them on the pitch.

"I remember that game because I was kicked and bullied and I remember my dad thinking that I should not be playing at a level where everybody was a lot older than me.

"However I still played and I scored so from that moment I always played at the level. I was always going to be small compared to the rest of the players and I used to get knocked about but it didn't matter to me because I just wanted to play football.

"I started out as a striker but a local priest who actually coached our team decided to put me as a defending player and I did well so I have stayed there ever since.

"Those experiences have made me the player that I am today. I have been dragged around a lot on the pitch but for all the times I have been knocked I have come back and to this day I still love getting stuck in and putting in a tackle."

Ready to move on to pastures new, Medo arguably made the most important decision of his life to leave his homeland and move not only to a new country, but a new continent to try his luck as a footballer in Europe.

Aged just 18, he moved to Finland to sign for Kuopion Palloseura but spent only one year with the club before moving to the country's capital city to pen a deal with HJK.

"The difference of living in Sierra Leone compared to Finland was huge," he admitted. "The first thing I noticed was the change in weather because back home I didn't know what snow was!

"The weather was brand new to me but it was my job to adapt to the situation and realise I wasn't at home anymore.

"That is what I will always try and do. At first it was really hard for me to adjust but I have always had good people around me and the Finnish people made it easier to settle in.

"Finland is a second home to me now and I am thankful for the time I had there because at the time I was only a young boy."

In his first year in Finland, Medo won HJK's most valuable Player of the Year award and helped the Klubi's claim the First Division title.

After 91 appearances and 13 goals, Medo was back on the move in August 2010 with Serbian club FK Partizan his next port of call.

"It was a great move for me to join Partizan," he explained. "They were playing in the Champions League and that will be an experience I will never forget. I have played against teams like Arsenal and Inter Milan and the experience was unbelievable.

"I played in Finland for over five years and I did it all - I won all the trophies and prizes that I could so I was ready for a fresh challenge with Partizan.

"I needed to move on and see a different league and compete at a different level. I got the move right at the very end of the summer 2010 transfer window and I had two and a half fantastic years in Serbia."

Medo's success in Scandinavia continued as he helped the Serbian giants win back-to-back league titles and the Serbian Cup alongside featuring five times in the Champions League.

His performances for the Black and Whites, who were then managed by former Chelsea and West Ham boss Avram Grant, led to speculation that Medo could be on his way to the Premier League with Tottenham Hotspur rumoured to be interested.

A move never materialised for the Sierra Leone international however and in January 2013, he sealed a switch to the Reebok Stadium and prepared to taste English football for the first time.

"When I found out about the move to Bolton Wanderers, I wanted to come here and do my best for the football club.

"The atmosphere in each country is completely different and there is a huge difference playing in England.

"The fans adore the game, it is amazing to see. I love seeing the fans hyped up for every single game and it gives me the added motivation to go and please the supporters."

The 1-1 draw against Sheffield Wednesday seven days ago was the midfielder's 22nd appearance for the club, with one goal to his name so far, a long distance strike against Charlton Athletic last season.

Over the last few weeks, Medo has built a strong relationship in the heart of the Whites' midfield alongside Liverpoolian Jay Spearing, with the duo offering a real bite to the Bolton side.

"I love playing with Jay - he has a heart just like mine and we feel the exact same when we are playing.

"We are not the tallest of players but height doesn't matter, it is all in your mind, when either of us see a ball to be won we will do everything to get it!

"I can't wait now to score my first goal of the season and hopefully it will come this afternoon. I have hit the post a few times this season but I am happy to be getting the opportunities.

"I have scored goals from a long way out on a regular basis before in Finland and I believe I can do that again for Bolton Wanderers.

"We have shown a real improvement in the last four games and we are heading in the right direction. We just need a bit of luck but we will definitely get there.

"We have a strong squad and we have built on that with the players we have signed on loan.

"We all want to play and we are all fighting hard to win games and climb the league table. I believe it will only be a matter of time until we are winning games on a consistent basis."

Phil Gittins Wanderers Player commentator

When Dougie Freedman dipped into the loan market at the end of last month to bring in Kevin McNaughton, Neil Danns, and Liam Feeney he did so to increase his options as he looked to improve Wanderers early season fortunes.

In the modern game, where larger squads are the norm, you will often hear football managers up and down the country talking about the importance and benefits of competition for places.

The logic goes that having players competing for places in the starting eleven keeps those currently in possession of the jersey on their toes and ensures that they perform to their optimum level. By the same token it also maintains that when chances materialise for those not in the starting line up they will be hungry to prove a point, and will perform at maximum intensity to retain their place in the side. The ultimate goal is that the team benefits.

It's a theory that certainly rings true at Bolton Wanderers right now. Having found themselves out of the side in the early weeks of the campaign, Matt Mills and Tim Ream were forced to bide their time and wait patiently for their opportunity to come along.

Their chance duly arrived and they were paired together at the heart of the Whites backline for the visit of Yeovil to BL6 at the end of September. Without question it is a move that has certainly paid dividends as in the four games since Wanderers have remained unbeaten conceding only three goals in the process.

To their credit both men have grasped their opening with relish and have played key roles with commanding displays that have made Bolton a much more resolute outfit and made it impossible for the manager to leave them out at the same time.

But it is not only defensively where rivalry for starting roles amongst Dougie Freedman's squad has had visible benefits.

Last Saturday's draw with Sheffield Wednesday being a case in point. Both Chung Yong Lee and David N'gog started the afternoon on the bench, but following their introduction in the second half it was obvious they were keen to prove their worth playing significant roles as the Whites staged a late onslaught in search of victory.

Within moments of his introduction N'gog picked up possession just inside the Owls half and set off on a run that took him beyond several Wednesday challenges only to be denied by the last gasp intervention of Chris Kirkland.

It was very much a sign of things to come as our number nine led the line with pace and power.

For his part Chung Yong Lee was a constant menace to the visitor's rearguard with his intelligent movement, trickery and inviting delivery that carved out late opportunities for Matt Mills, Chris Eagles and Jermaine Beckford.

There are no two ways about it the introductions of the hungry N'gog and Lee gave Wanderers real impetus and they have both given the manager plenty of food for thought prior to kick off this afternoon.

Such deliberations though will be exactly what he is after as he knows that with his squad firing on all cylinders they are more than a match for anybody in this division.

Unbeaten in four, more miserly in defence and with Jermaine Beckford on the goal trail surely better times are just around the corner, hopefully starting today against Ipswich.

Enjoy the game!

NEWS BOARD

ADAM UPDATE

Adam Bogdan is set to be out of action for between three and six weeks after straining a ligament in his left knee.

The injury occurred during Monday morning's training session. "It is better news than we first feared," Dougie Freedman said. "The doctors have told me that he will be out of action for some time between three and six weeks."

Striker pens first professional contract

Tom Youngs has signed his first professional contract, penning a two-year deal with the club.

The academy graduate made his first team debut in Bolton's Capital One Cup tie at Tranmere Rovers earlier this season, appearing as an extra time substitute.

And London-born Youngs, aged 19, has now officially signed professional terms.

"I'm a firm believer in working with younger players from our academy," Freedman said. "Tom is a player we have high hopes for if he can continue his progress."

SANMI SIGNS

Young striker Sanmi Odeusi has signed a contract extension with the club.

The 20-year-old's deal will now run through to the summer of 2016.

Odeusi was handed his first team debut by Dougie Freedman in a league match away at Charlton last March.

He has since gone on to bag a brace in Bolton's Capital One Cup victory at Shrewsbury earlier this season.

"I'm delighted to have signed a new deal," Odeusi said. "It's now time for me to get my head down and continue to work hard. I want to be pushing for more first team appearances.

"Hopefully I'll get my chance. I want to show people how much it means for me to be here.

"Since the manager and his staff came in I feel they have helped develop my game both on and off the pitch. I want that continue."

BIRTHDAYS!!!!

In two days time Ipswich Town supporter Elliott Moss will celebrate his ninth birthday.

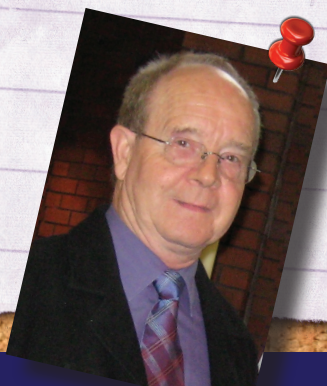

Elliott has travelled up from Suffolk today with his Dad and Grandad to support the Tractor Boys.

Dad, Gemma, Nana, Grandad, Oli, Archie and Lexie all

Happy 30th Birthday Michael! Hope you enjoy the game today with a good win! Love you, Anna xxx'

Lifelong Wanderers fan Clive Cheston celebrated his 70th birthday on the 11th October and everybody at the club would like to wish him a happy birthday!

Clive started to watch Bolton in the mid 60's and he has followed the club home and away ever since. Hopefully Clive will be celebrating alongside his fellow Bolton supporters with three points this afternoon against Ipswich Town.

DEVELOPMENT SQUAD

Blackpool 2-7 Bolton Wanderers

Wanderers' development squad ensured their progression into the quarter finals of the Lancashire FA Senior Cup with an emphatic 7-2 drubbing of Blackpool on Tuesday afternoon.

The Whites had raced into a 3-0 lead at the break thanks to Conor Wilkinson's hat-trick, but the Seasiders pulled two goals back shortly after the restart through Steve Davies and an own goal from Andy Kellett.

Not to be deterred however, Bolton hit back with another strike from Wilkinson, a superb solo effort from Chris Lester and a brace from Kellett to set up a last eight tie with Manchester United.

Wanderers started brightly and their early pressure was to yield the opening goal of the game inside two minutes as Zach Clough chased the ball downfield before threading it into the feet of Wilkinson who slotted home.

Having begun in such emphatic fashion, the Whites proceeded to double their advantage just three minutes later, this time Kellett providing the cross for Wilkinson who prodded the ball home from close range.

As the half wore on, Wilkinson went close to his hat trick after a mazy run from midfield, while Jan Gregus clipped the crossbar with his corner.

After a flurry of chances, the tempo of the game dropped somewhat as the game headed towards the break, with another tame Zeegelaar effort being the most notable opportunity of the closing stages.

With the half looking set to finish with Wanderers just two to the good however, Wilkinson completed his treble in fine style, slotting home from a matter of yards out from Lester's ball across the face of goal.

After struggling to break Wanderers' resolve in the opening 45 minutes, the Seasiders began the second half with a bang as Davies headed home Daniel Johnson's cross with just 30 seconds on the clock.

Following a tirade of attacks from the hosts, Blackpool finally snatched a second as Kellett inadvertently bundled the ball past his own goalkeeper under pressure.

With two goals under their belts, it was clear to see that Blackpool fancied themselves to snatch an equaliser, but it was to be Wanderers who would find the back of the net as Wilkinson snatched his fourth with 66 minutes gone.

The goal appeared to work wonders for the Whites' confidence, and the team's three goal advantage was restored just five minutes later as Chris Lester chipped the ball over the advancing Mark Halstead in the Blackpool net.

Having put the ball into his own net earlier in the half, Kellett was to make it six with 79 minutes on the clock following a mazy run into the area which resulted in him slotting the ball under the Seasiders' keeper.

As the clock ran down, the conditions on the coast became almost unplayable as the rain poured down on Blackpool's Squires Gate training ground, but there was still enough time for Kellett to complete the rout on the stroke of full time with a tap in from close range.

UNDER18s

EVERTON 2-1 WANDERERS

Jamie Thomas was on the score sheet as Wanderers' Under 18 side slipped to a 2-1 defeat against Everton last weekend.

With the team looking to avenge their 5-0 reverse at the hands of Middlesbrough prior to the international break, the club's youngsters started brightly on Merseyside with a number of early opportunities to take the lead.

Having enjoyed the better start of the two sides, David Lee's team proceeded to take the lead shortly after half time following good work from Elliot Newby who allowed Thomas to fire home past the Everton goalkeeper.

Their lead was to be short-lived however, with George Green pulling the hosts back onto level terms with a low drive past Harry Campbell into the bottom corner of the net.

As the game wore on, both Guillermo Torres and Aaron Knight went close to securing all three points for Wanderers with fine individual efforts, but Russell Griffiths was equal to them.

With it looking as though the clash would end all square however, Callum Connolly broke Bolton hearts with the winning goal just three minutes from time.

Despite a disappointing final result however, coach Lee was pleased with the performance of his players and the improvement on the display during their last outing.

"I think it was actually the best we've played the best we've played all season – we looked sharp and intense," he said following the final whistle. "The intensity and the way they applied themselves was much better than the Middlesbrough game and that was the main thing for us.

"There were some good individual performances which was very pleasing. Every man gave a positive response – on another day, we could have easily won the game had we put on chances away."

Lee also paid tribute to their opponents, claiming that the Goodison Park outfit's youth set-up is something which the club itself aspires to be like in the future.

"Everton are the benchmark that we look at," he explained. "They've got some quality players and a fantastic infrastructure.

"Speaking with their staff after the game, they felt we deserved to get at least a draw from the gamewhich is great.

"The players can take confidence from what they said and can hopefully push on from it."

BBC Radio Manchester and The Christie

Many of our supporters are familiar with the distinctive voice of Jack Dearden as he provides passionate commentary of Wanderers' matches on BBC Radio Manchester.

For the past twelve months, BBC Radio Manchester have had another passion as they have joined up with The Christie and have been raising money to improve the services on offer. Today a collection is being made at the ground for this great cause.

Thanks to everyone's support so far, BBC Radio Manchester and The Christie have successfully launched a mobile chemotherapy unit that has enabled them to deliver first class treatment and care, closer to where patients live. This includes at the Bolton Royal Hospital, which will be one of the stations the unit stops at each week.

BBC Radio Manchester are now moving their focus to the second part of the appeal, and the new Young Oncology Unit (YOU) at The Christie.

The radio station are now raising funds for a Radioisotope room that will be part of the brand new state of the art cancer centre for young patients.

The Christie
Charitable Fund

This room is one of the most expensive rooms as part of the new development and is a purpose built room for patients undergoing radioisotope therapy.

It will have specially designed thicker walls and a thickened window to contain radiation and be fully equipped with en-suite and entertainment facilities to ensure that a patient's stay in the room will be as pleasant as possible.

Due to the radioactivity of the treatment, young patients are often required to stay in isolation. The average length of stay is about a week, but it does vary from case to case depending on the individual condition, response to the treatment and circumstances – it may be up to three to four weeks in some cases.

Dealing with cancer can be particularly tough for teenagers and young adults, especially when having to stay in isolation for long periods of time. With your support, we can provide the best possible environment for teenagers and young adults undergoing radioisotope therapy.

If you would like to help The Christie in partnership with BBC Radio Manchester build this new Young Oncology Unit, you can do by simply texting NYOU99 £3 to 70070 to donate £3.

JAY SPEARING

TURNING THE POSITIVES INTO VICTORIES

Jay Spearing believes that the team can take a number of positives from recent results in their bid to secure a first win on home soil against Ipswich Town this afternoon.

The midfielder gave another sterling performance last weekend against the Owls, with him confident that victory at the Reebok Stadium isn't far away.

"I think you could say that it was a fair result against Wednesday, but at the end we were a little bit disappointed that we didn't take all three points with the chances that we created," said Spearing.

"We thought we started off really well, and then they had a period of the game where they played some really nice football, but we kept ourselves in the game, didn't let them go ahead and defended really well.

"The second half, we made some really good passes and really good chances, but sadly we didn't take them."

Having worn the captain's armband in the 1-1 draw against Wednesday, the 24-year-old admitted that the honour is one that is not wasted on him.

"It's something that I'm very proud of – it's something that I want to do, leading out the lads and taking them on to get those three points.

"Just because I've got an armband on, it doesn't mean that I have to change in any way, shape or form.

"I just try and help the lads a little bit more on the communication side and if I can lead us to wins, then happy days."

Speaking in regards to today's clash against Mick McCarthy's Tractor Boys, Liverpool-born Spearing admitted that he and his teammates have been raring to go all week.

"We're unbeaten after last week and we want to take all three points today.

"That's how we want to play at home – we want to play the football we know we can play and get at teams and cause them problems.

"We've got the players who are capable of doing it and we've got players who can come off the bench and change games.

"The loan signings have been great too - they've come in and shown exactly what they're all about.

"They've come in to play football and they're doing everything they can for the team to help us go forward and win games."

Today's game will be the 30th time that Bolton Wanderers have faced Ipswich Town in league action, with the Whites hoping to record their first home victory of the season against the Tractor Boys this afternoon.

A team that finished the 2012/13 season in a respectable 14th position after spending much of the campaign flirting with relegation, Ipswich enter the clash on the back of a narrow 1-0 defeat to Burnley last weekend.

Having experienced a solid if not unspectacular start to their current campaign after taking 15 points from their opening 12 games, the travelling supporters will no doubt look to the last meeting between the two sides at the Reebok Stadium as inspiration for today's clash.

Back in December 2012, the Whites took an early lead thanks to Mark Davies' strike, but a late penalty from DJ Campbell and Michael Chopra's last minute strike condemned Bolton to a 2-1 defeat on a bitterly cold afternoon in BL6.

Despite having four wins to their name already this season, Town have failed to secure maximum points on the road with three defeats and three draws so far.

They have however had no trouble finding the back of the net this term, with the team's incredible 4-4 draw at Pride Park against Derby County earlier this month being the prime example of their threat in front of goal.

The permanent signing of striker David McGoldrick in the summer has certainly bolstered Mick McCarthy's side, with the former Nottingham Forest frontman having notched five of Town's 18 league goals this season.

With their home results forming the basis of their foundations for the remainder of the campaign however, McCarthy will be hoping that his side can begin to replicate their performances at Portman Road on their travels in a bid to make it a season to remember for the Ipswich faithful.

★ STARMAN

Frontman David McGoldrick has been a revelation for Ipswich Town since his arrival in Suffolk in January from Nottingham Forest, initially on loan.

His impressive form for the Tractor Boys in the latter stages of the 2012/13 campaign however persuaded Mick McCarthy to sign the striker on a permanent deal in the summer.

The 25-year-old is certainly the man to watch after finding the back of the opposition goal five times in 13 appearances so far this season

His lethal form in front of goal sealed the Ipswich Town number 10 September's Championship Player of the Month award and he will no doubt be looking to add to his goal scoring tally against the Whites come kick-off.

Having started out his career with his local side of Notts County, it wasn't long before McGoldrick headed down to the south coast as a teenager to link up with Southampton.

Loan spells at Bournemouth and Port Vale quickly followed in a bid to gain the youngster valuable game time before McGoldrick established himself in the Saints' first team, finishing as Southampton's top goal scorer in 2009.

After proving himself a force to be reckoned with, McGoldrick's form in the red and white jersey tempted Billy Davies to bring him back to Nottingham that summer, but this time to represent County's ardent rivals Forest.

Playing his part in two unsuccessful Championship Play-Off campaigns at the City Ground, McGoldrick ultimately found himself frozen out of the Reds' side last term.

Keen to play on a regular basis, the striker joined Coventry City on loan during the summer of 2012 where he went on to become the Sky Blues' top goal scorer before agreeing to join Ipswich Town in January of this year where he has remained ever since.

THE BOSS

Mick McCarthy arrived at Portman Road late last year and helped steer Ipswich Town away from the Championship relegation zone.

The former Wolves and Sunderland boss rejuvenated the Tractor Boys and won his first game in charge against Birmingham City at St Andrew's, ending Town's search for a first league victory in 12 attempts.

By the end of his first month in charge McCarthy had lifted Ipswich out of the relegation zone, with the Tractor Boys going on to finish the season in a respectable 14th position.

This season however, the Suffolk based club have endured a mixed start and currently lie in mid-table.

Before taking over the reins at Portman Road, McCarthy was in charge at Wolves but departed late in the 2011/12 season with the club looking destined to be relegated the top flight.

Having previously managed Sunderland and Millwall, McCarthy is famously remembered for his time in charge of the Republic of Ireland, a job which the 54-year-old has been recently linked with.

The highlight of his time in international management was qualification for the 2002 World Cup in South Korea and Japan, where against all odds, the Republic progressed through their group to the knock out stages but lost in the next round to Spain on penalties.

Soon after the World Cup, McCarthy resigned with his next destination the North East of England to join Sunderland.

Spending three years at the Stadium of Light, McCarthy left and joined Wolves in soon after and helped the club win the Championship title and survive two seasons in the Premier League.

HISTORY

Ipswich Town Football Club was founded in 1878, but the team only turned professional 48 years later in 1936.

The Tractor Boys as they are known originally played their football at Broomhill Road, but their stay at their first home was short lived and they relocated to Portman Road in 1884 where they have remained ever since.

Based in the middle of Ipswich, the club's stadium bares tribute to arguably two of the greatest English managers of all time in Sir Alf Ramsey and Sir Bobby Robson, with the pair immortalised with both a stand named after them and statues erected in their honour outside the ground.

These two managerial spells proved to be the pinnacle of Ipswich Town's success on the pitch with the following years seeing Town flitter between the top two tiers of English football.

Following their relegation from the Premier League in 2002, despite qualifying for the UEFA Cup the season before, Town have been firmly rooted in the Championship and are now currently the longest serving team in the second tier.

Ramsey, who lifted the World Cup for England in 1966, managed Town from 1955 until 1963 before taking the nation's top job at Wembley.

During his time in Suffolk, Ramsey guided the club from the old Third Division to the First Division title, with Ipswich being crowned as champions of England in their inaugural season in the top flight.

As one of England's most successful managers departed Portman Road, another joined in 1969 as Bobby Robson took on the job as he looked to build on Ramsey's success.

The former Fulham and West Brom forward didn't disappoint during his time with the club, with Town going on to win the FA Cup in 1978 after defeating Arsenal and three years later lifting the UEFA Cup with a historic two legged victory over Dutch club AZ Alkmaar.

Following his impressive spell in charge, Robson followed Ramsey's footsteps as the Football Association came back knocking on the Portman Road for a Town boss in 1982.

4.75 – The purchase of Matteo Sereni from Sampdoria for £4.75 million in July 2001 remains the club's highest transfer fee paid for a player.

A number of Ipswich players including John Wark, Russell Osman, Robin Turner and Laurie Sivell featured alongside Sylvester Stallone and Pele in the 1981 film Escape To Victory.

Former Bolton Wanderers and Ipswich Town goalkeeper Keith Branagan described his eight-year stay in the North West as special.

The former Republic of Ireland international was a guest speaker in the Platinum Suite last weekend ahead of the 1-1 draw against Sheffield Wednesday.

During his time at Bolton Wanderers, Branagan experienced three promotions, featured in two Premier League campaigns and started the League Cup final defeat against Liverpool in 1995.

"Prior to signing for Bolton Wanderers, things didn't work out for me at Millwall because of a knee injury but Bruce Ricoh saw something he liked and put together a strong side," he said.

"The League Cup run in 1994/95 put the club on the map. The final against Liverpool was the start of our ascendancy and we won promotion to the Premier League soon after.

"They were wonderful times and we had a great dressing room. It did take a while for us to click but when we did it was the start of something special."

The custodian started his career in 1983 at Cambridge City before joining Millwall in 1988. Branagan went on to have brief loan spells at Brentford and Gillingham before his eight year association with Bolton began in 1992.

Going on to feature over 200 times for the Whites, Branagan admitted he has several memorable moments but two games in particular stand out for him including the Play-Off Final over Reading.

Branagan famously saved a penalty from Reading's Stuart Lovell with the score 2-0 to the Royals and many Bolton fans describe it as a turning point in game with Wanderers eventually running out 4-3 winners after extra time.

Describing his emotions before the penalty was taken, Branagan said: "My immediate thoughts were if this goes in, we are finished.

"I looked at the Reading player and tried to put myself in his boots and I started to ask myself what would I do if I was him?

"I thought it would take a brave man to side foot the ball considering how important the penalty was and if it was me I would opt to put my laces through the ball. Fortunately my prediction was correct and it proved to be pivotal as we went on to win the game.

"Another game that sticks in my mind is when we played Hull City in 1993. It doesn't often get mentioned but thousands of Bolton fans made the trip and we needed to collect maximum points in order to win promotion from Division Two.

"We went 1-0 down after Hull City scored a penalty and we also had the added blow of Alan Stubbs getting sent off. We managed to score an equaliser and I remember Phil Brown telling the referee with eight minutes to go if he could add a bit more time on.

"We ended up winning the game 2-1 and the Bolton fans invaded the pitch after the final whistle."

Now 47 years of age, Branagan still lives and works in the area, with his son Richie having followed in his father's footsteps and is now a goalkeeper at Conference outfit Macclesfield Town.

Branagan Senior believes his son is a better goalkeeper than he was, but is under no illusion that Richie has a long way to go like any young player if he is going to earn a living from the game .

"I would have to say Richie is better than me" admitted the London born goalkeeper. "For any young footballer there is always a long way to go and it doesn't stop because all of a sudden it can all fall away.

"He will have to maintain his standards, Richie has a good head on his shoulders and he a good work ethic and hopefully he will get to where he wants to be."

IN THE COMMUNITY

BACK TO SCHOOL

Mills and Pratley Become Teachers for Afternoon Wanderers stars Matt Mills and Darren Pratley turned teachers for the afternoon on Monday when they took part in a school assembly at Claypool Primary School to educate pupils on emergency life-saving skills.

Delivered by Bolton Wanderers Community Trust, the school assembly was part of the Wanderers Hearts and Goals charity initiative; a campaign devised last season with the mission of helping to prevent death caused by Sudden Cardiac Arrest by raising awareness, offering CPR training to schools, workforces and community group as well as fundraising to position defibrillators throughout the community of Bolton.

Whilst BWCT staff led the assembly in front of all the school pupils from the primary school in Horwich, Matt and Darren helped to demonstrate how to perform basic CPR and how to use a defibrillator before two children were chosen to put their new found skills to the test and put the two players into the recovery session.

The Wanderers duo then took part in a question and answer session where they talked to the children the importance of an active lifestyle and how crucial it is for everyone to have access to AED equipment before ending their visit by presenting the school with their own defibrillator alongside BWCT staff and other charity partners of Wanderers Hearts and Goals including North West Ambulance Service, Bolton NHS Foundation Trust and Physio Control.

Speaking after the visit Darren said: "I was on the pitch back at White Hart Lane when Fabrice went down and it was probably the worst day of my life; it really puts everything into perspective and makes you realise that life is the most important thing and you can't ever take that for granted. The work that BWCT do in the local community to highlight the importance of these defibrillators and teaching basic emergency life-saving skills is brilliant."

Show Racism the Red Card

Zat Knight, Medo and first team coach Curtis Fleming were the guests of honour at a Show Racism the Red Card Q&A session held at the Reebok Stadium on Monday.

An event designed to help youngsters understand the dangers of racism, the trio were greeted by local school pupils before meeting the children for photos and autographs.

Speaking following the visit, club captain Knight admitted that the cause is one which is very close to his heart. "I really enjoyed talking to the kids," he said. "I've got a young son of my own and he's going through some of the same troubles that other children have experienced themselves.

"Although he's been suffering from people being more stereotypical than racist, it's still all the same and needs to be stopped."

He added: "It's a massive thing to get across to youngsters – you obviously don't want to frighten them with the truth, but it's so important that they're aware of what goes on in the world. It is out there, but we just all need to pull in the same direction to eradicate it.

"Having spoken with the kids, I tried to get across to them that you can't let the kind of people who are racist win and I hope I succeeded."

Wanderers Duo Attend BWSA Social

Wanderers duo Jermaine Beckford and Neil Danns were the guest of honour at the BWSA's October Social that took place in the Wanderers Suite at the Reebok Stadium on Wednesday night.

Bolton fans young and old came along on a damp and rainy autumn evening to hear the two player talk all things Wanderers including their time at the Club to date, day-to-day life at Euxton, their hopes for the upcoming games and their friendship through the years at various clubs.

Jermaine and Neil rounded off their time with BWSA members by posing for photographs and signing autographs.

It is a big weekend for Bolton Wanderers International Soccer School as they host their sixth annual World Grand Skills Final at the Reebok Stadium.

Over 150 people will fly in to the North West of England from all over the globe to participate from countries such as USA, Australia, South Africa and Columbia to name just a few.

The final will be held over a four day period, with the event having started yesterday. During the course of the competition, the players will be tested on their footballing ability, assessed in games and will also be interviewed by an illustrious panel including former European Cup winner Sammy Lee and Phil Gartside.

The format will be similar to that of popular television show X Factor with elimination as the players progress through the rounds until an eventual winner is announced on Monday evening.

The winner will receive a one year full scholarship on the International Football Studies programme, so it is a fabulous incentive for everybody involved.

Throughout the course of the year, the International Soccer School has identified a number of talented individuals from around the world who have all been invited to the 2013 Grand Skills Final.

They all dream of becoming a professional footballer and hopefully everybody involved will enjoy their weekend at BL6 with one lucky individual coming out with the top prize at the end.

The footballers will be based at the club's academy in Lostock, and will have the opportunity to go on tour and take a look behind the scenes at the Reebok Stadium.

The players will be in the stand too for this afternoon's game against Ipswich Town before taking part in Sunday and Monday's sessions.

MILLWALL

Londoners Millwall will be the next team to travel to BL6 to take on Dougie Freedman's side on Saturday 9th November, with the game kicking off at 3pm.

The Lions are currently enjoying their fourth season in England's second tier, having earned promotion back to the Championship in 2009/10 with a play-off final win over Swindon Town at Wembley.

Having finished their first season in an admirable ninth position, the last two seasons haven't reached the same standards.

The Lions, who were managed by Kenny Jackett at the time, ended up in 16th position in 2011/12 and dropped a further four places the following season as they finished 20th before Jackett resigned to take the Wolverhampton Wanderers hot seat in May.

Now under the guidance of former West Ham midfielder Steve Lomas, Millwall have won three games so far this season and face a difficult trip to Reading this afternoon. Having won one game on the road so far against Charlton Athletic, the Lions will be making only their second ever visit to the Reebok Stadium.

Last season, Millwall secured a 1-1 draw against the Whites with Andy Keogh's ninth minute penalty being cancelled out by a Keith Andrews spot kick 25 minutes later.

A number of Lomas' squad are currently enjoying their first season at the club with the likes of Martyn Waghorn, Scott McDonald and Jermaine Easter all penning deals in July.

Alongside the trio, Lomas has drafted in experienced campaigners Stephen Bywater, Shaun Derry, Richard Chaplow and Lee Martin.

The most notable signing to the Millwall support however was that of Steve Morison, with the striker returning to the club after scoring 40 goals in 95 appearances from 2009 to 2011.

Speaking to Millwall's club website, manager Steve Lomas praised his team after their 2-2 draw against Queens Park Rangers last weekend.

“I thought the point was the least we deserved,” Lomas said. “I’m really pleased with the number of chances we created against a QPR side who I think will run away with this League.”

“We should have dealt with the opening goal better and we had to re-group at half-time.

“But we came out in the second-half and gave a great response. We knew there would be times when they would keep possession and you have to be patient with that, and we could have been back in it through Liam (Trotter) who had a couple of headers.

“He did excellent to dispossess Richard Dunne and slide it to Scotty (McDonald) for a great finish and we were up and running.

“Charlie Austin gave them that second goal and you can see why they paid a few million for him. At 2-1, David Forde made a great save to keep us in it and that was a key moment.

“We went for it with four forwards on the pitch by the end and I’m delighted for the lads after two tough-to-take results before the international break. We have to replicate this performance away to Reading now.”
